WHY DO GROWERS ONLY SHIP IN THE FALL?

Perhaps the most common question I receive during ordering season is “Can you ship my iris(es) now?” The answer will always be “We ship in the fall only.” There is a reason for this shipping rule.

The growth cycle of Louisiana irises is somewhat different than most plants. The bloom season for these irises begins in early spring, followed by a dormant cycle when summer begins to heat up. The irises remain dormant until the temperature begins to drop again in the fall. At that time, they break dormancy and begin new root growth. This is the perfect time to divide and replant, allowing the iris time to establish roots in their new beds before winter sets in. Louisiana irises need well established root systems to support growth and bloom in spring. Dividing during spring interrupts the bloom cycle and may shock the plant. Digging right after bloom time puts great stress on the rhizome, as it goes dormant after bloom. The rhizome will not grow any new roots until fall, so you run the risk of losing the plant altogether.

We, as growers, want you to receive the strongest and healthiest plant we have to offer. We know you order because you desire to see the beauty of the Louisiana iris in bloom, and we want you to enjoy your flowers and buying experience with us. For this reason, we will only ship at the perfect time for these things to happen.

I hope this helps you to understand why we only ship bare root plants in the fall.

If you have to have your plants in the spring, your best bet is to locate a retail nursery that sells potted irises and plant the potted plants without disturbing the roots.

Thanks,
Cindy
